EXTRACT

P Sam

Submitted to His Highness

At the last meeting of the merchants in Bangalore the question whether the present octroi duties which were represented as hampering the trade considerably could not be replaced by some more equitable form of taxation was discussed and several divergent views expressed Many of the persons representing municipal interests were of opinion that it would not be possible to find any efficient substitute for it, while the persons engaged in business were more or less unanimous in their opinion as to its injurious effects on trade The subject was also considered in the last meeting of the Representative Assembly, and there was a strong volume of opinion in that body in favour of abolition of this tax specially in regard to handloom goods

2 The Taxation Committee appointed by the Government of India have also condemned this tax It is very desirable that this question should therefore be thoroughly threshed out by a representative Committee who while realising its value as an important item of municipal revenue will be alive at the same time to the serious inconvenience and loss it causes to trade Though the levy of octroi is optional in the Municipal Regulation as a matter of fact the municipalities look to it as one of their important sources of revenue and though refunds could be obtained in the case of dutiable articles which cannot be sold in the place where the tax is levied, the delay and difficulties one has to face before such refunds could be obtained have been found to prevent proper relief being given and instances are frequent in which the same articles are made to pay octroi in more than one place It is a very difficult system to work and the more trade and industry expand the more difficult it is to adjust it for the benefit of trade It is therefore desirable to appoint a Committee to investigate the whole question

3 The matter was considered in Council who have resolved as follows -

"A Committee may be appointed consisting of -

Mr Mir Humza Hussain (CHAIRMAN),
" N S Nanjundiah
" C Subba Rao
" B K Garudachar

3 E.O. No L8970-79 of 12-26 to the Chairman of the above Committee

Appointment to Civil Supply & Food Supply Branch as Secy of the Enquiry Committee

Speech by the Dewan at the Meeting of Merchants and Industrialists held at the Daly Memorial Hall on Thursday the 30th September 1926

GENTLEMEN —

MY first duty is to welcome you all to this meeting which has been called in our mutual interests Let me at once assure you individually and collectively that it is the desire of His Highness s Government to afford all possible facilities for the protection and expansion of the trades and industries of this City on which its prosperity so largely depends One of the chief purposes for which this gathering of you Gentlemen has been brought together is to learn first hand from you not only the difficulties under which you may be labouring but also what may be done to further the facilities you now enjoy You who have been in close touch with the trade of the City ought to be able to indicate the chief lines on which Government could best aid you in your endeavours to develop it

Industries in Bangalore

I understand that the total number of industrial concerns using electric power in Bangalore has risen from 48 in 1916 17 to 197 in 1924 25 but the number of concerns in the City employing on an average more than 20 persons a day is only 44 Of the industrial undertakings in the City about 30 are in the extensions 7 in the industrial suburb and the rest in the crowded parts The want of a definite plan for the systematic development of industries and their location has been proving a serious obstacle to the industrial expansion of the City Questions of improvement doubtless belong to the Municipality but the Government are also keenly interested in this matter and would be glad to know directly from you what could be done to improve conditions in the main centres of trade in the City In Western Countries as you may be aware particular trades are concentrated in particular areas This appears to have been also the practice in the cities of ancient India but the practice has fallen into desuetude and it is for you to state what you would desire in this particular matter The number of persons engaged in the larger industries in the City is calculated to be about 8 100 and the question of providing suitable housing accommodation for such a large mass of the labouring population is one on which your suggestions will be helpful

Transport Facilities

The question of communications and improved facilities of transport is closely connected with trade prosperity Trade indeed depends so much on railway facilities that it is no wonder that the problem of the increase of such facilities is always to the forefront in Mysore as elsewhere in India Bangalore City owes much of its importance to its being a railway centre You have a Chamber of Commerce in your midst and its vigilance and activity have been largely instrumental in securing to you many requisite conveniences in this and other allied matters Still Government would be only too pleased to know from you what they could do for you in regard to transportation generally and especially in regard to increased facilities from railways

Banking Facilities

Then there is the question of augmenting banking facilities The Bank of Mysore has done good work and been of yeoman service to the trade of the State The extent of the business now financed annually by it exceeds three crores of rupees The question of increasing its usefulness has constantly been before Government Its Branches and Agencies are popularising banking in the interior of the State There is still room for the expansion of its usefulness I should be glad to have definite suggestions from you on this point No subject has received in recent years greater attention in India than this one of affording increased banking facilities Among the more far reaching recommendations made by the Indian Currency Commission which recently issued its report there is one touching on this subject to which I would draw your attention In emphatically urging an extensive and scientific survey of banking conditions in India they suggest that nothing should be left undone which will tend to facilitate and encourage banking progress in India They also express the hope that in devising the requisite measures of improvement in this connection due emphasis will be laid on the provision and extension of cheap facilities to the public including banks and bankers for internal remittance These are matters which affect trade as much in Mysore as elsewhere in India and it would be an advantage to know what you may have to say in regard to them It is needless for me to reiterate the fact that the patriotism of a banking account is still ill understood in our own State and if any steps can be taken to make people realise its importance better the Government will be only too glad to hear of them from you

Octroi Duties

As you are aware there is everywhere much complaint against the existing octroi duties which have a tendency in many places to develop into transit duties hampering trade Municipal resources being dependent to a great extent upon this impost it is not possible to abolish it altogether and the conversion of the duties into a terminal tax and other substitutes have been recommended The subject is one that vitally affects your interests and any constructive suggestions from you for removing impediments to the free movement of trade, without crippling the finances of local and other bodies, will be sympathetically considered by Government

Trade in the State

The trade conditions of the State do not show much improvement The total foreign trade of the State passing through the railway is about Rs 2 528 lakhs at present as against Rs 1 677 lakhs in 1913 14 A great deal of this apparent increase is due to changes affecting the currency The total trade of the State per head of population is only Rs 40 and both exports and imports are more or less stationary

Addressing gentlemen like you I cannot but call attention to the broad fact that the trade in grains and pulses in piece goods and cloth in leather and skins metals oil seeds and the like has passed from local merchants into the hands of outsiders from distant provinces in India This fact has been so often mentioned that its novelty has nearly worn off It needs reiteration to day for we are still much in the same state as we were ten years ago Of course no blame attaches to the outsiders for they have shown commendable aptitude and adaptibility to the changing conditions of India and have taken advantage of the opportunities available to them in our State On the contrary all praise to them for the keen insight they have shown in this matter and the good example they have set to us But our people must take a leaf out of their book They should devise methods to give training in large business houses to their boys they should popularise suitable schemes of apprenticeship for them they should help in improving methods of saving by which the availability of cheap capital may be rendered automatic They should travel not only in India but also in foreign countries in order to widen their outlook and strengthen their business connections These things I know are not capable of immediate or easy achievement but an endeavour should be made at least from now in the directions indicated

Ten years ago a Chamber of Commerce was inaugurated in this city but a net work of Mercantile or Trades Associations affiliated to the Chamber or assisting it in its work and co operating with it in its endeavours to further its objects has yet to be created It is needless to mention that nothing pays so well in trade matters as well knit Trades Associations

The Economic Conference

You are doubtless aware that the Economic Conference is being reorganised and revivified One of the main functions of this body in which industrialists and merchants are represented is to keep itself in touch with and advise Government in regard to measures concerning the development of trade and industries in the State and the improvement of the resources of the people It has a special Board of Industries and Commerce to deal with these questions and Government are anxious that this Board should work in close co operation with all the industrial and mercantile interests and help them in the study of the larger problems concerning the organisation of business The collection of information and statistics will be an essential part of the duties of this body which should suggest what statistics should be collected and interpret them when collected while it should be the function of Trades Associations to supply them I shall be glad to have your suggestions as to how the work of this body may be co ordinated with the special interests of the merchants

Business Organisation

Government are anxious to take stock of the resources of the country and are projecting a scheme for the purpose It is necessary to link up industrial enterprise in the State with its merchants and traders In the economy of commerce the distributor is the man in direct touch with the consumer The producer and the consumer are generally wide apart and it is he distributor who puts them into contact with each other If our trade is to improve we have to fall into line with the methods that have been found valuable in other countries Owing to the defects in the organisation of our business it is a very common thing in this country for people to discover some way in which a profit can be made to embark upon it on a small scale and find themselves after a few years swamped by a big business combine Then they complain about exploitation and run for help to the Government The fact that combines have very distinct uses in steadying trade employment and prices is apt to be lost sight of as well as the fact that they are a part of the trade organisation of the world What people have to do is to adjust their enterprises so as to take into account the existing factors of which combines are one of the main characteristics It will be one of the important functions of the Economic Conference to study the changes in the organisation of business all the world over and explain them to the people who are immediately concerned

Trade conditions are still primitive in our State The importance and value of trade statistics has not yet been realised Enterprise and adventure are wholly lacking With conditions like these who cannot but desire change ? It is for you who represent the trade and industries of Bangalore to take the steps necessary to improve matters While Government is ready to give the necessary lead there is nothing like self help in things of this nature

The country will in the future need in an increasing degree your active help and co operation in matters of this nature and will I hope not look in vain to you for your patriotic assistance Cities like your make the State for they set the example for others to follow They are the foci of civilisation whence light radiates into the dark corners of the country

I now declare this meeting open and invite you Gentlemen to take part in the discussions that will follow I should be glad to hear of the difficulties if any experienced by you in your different trades or avocations together with your suggestions as to how you would like them remedied Government would be glad too to be guided by you in regard to what facilities you would desire for improving trade conditions generally in the State Needless to state His Highness's Government will give their earnest and sympathetic consideration to all that you may urge or suggest with a view to the early rectification of matters that you consider unsatisfactory

Order No L 3156 and 105-26-1

Dated 13/4/26

At the meeting of the Merchants held in the Daly Memorial Hall, Bangalore, on the 30th September 1926, it was represented that the levy of octroi in force in the municipalities was hampering trade and that octroi may be replaced by some more equitable form of taxation The subject was also considered at the last meeting of the Representative Assembly at which there was a strong volume of opinion in favour of the abolition of the tax

It is also observed that the Indian Taxation Enquiry Committee appointed by the Government of India have condemned the levy of octroi duty On the other hand, views have been expressed by those representing municipal interests that it is not possible in the present state of municipal finances, to abolish the tax and that the defects inseperable from the levy of octroi could be largely minimised by efficient supervision

Government therefore consider it desirable to appoint a Committee to consider the following questions -

(1) The feasibility of the abolition of

(2) The tax that may be substituted for octroi

(3) Changes in the methods of levying octroi if the total abolition is not considered feasible
